SUPREME COURT.

Condensed Decisions, Reported for the Appeal by H. Clay King, Esq.

No. 38. J. C. Mount vs. Ann H. Kesterson. The Memphis Chamber Court, Andrew J. Kingston, delivered the opinion of the Court. The bill in this case was filed in the Chancery Court of this State, and the following facts are established in the case:

On the 17th day of June, 1888, the defendant, Ann H. Kesterson, her husband, executed and delivered to Ann H. Kesterson a deed of conveyance of lot No. 335 in the city of Memphis, Tennessee, being the individual property of Mrs. Kesterson. Said lot was afterwards conveyed to Robert Ropp, who sold it to M. J. Wicks, E. W. Munford, W. B. Greenleaf, J. O. Greenleaf, through whom complainant Mount claims title to a portion of the lot. On the 6th of June, 1888, the defendant, Ann H. Kesterson, her husband being deceased or supposed to be so, commenced an action of ejectment against Mount for the recovery of that portion of the lot held by him. Her claim to recover was based upon the fact that she claimed that the certificate of her husband's examination and acknowledgment annexed to the deed of herself and husband is defective, and that the deed is not valid. The bill alleges these facts, with others not necessary to be stated here, and prays that the suit in ejectment be dismissed, and that the title to the lot be set up and established, and that if necessary the title to the lot be divested out of Mrs. Kesterson, and general relief be granted. The answer of Mrs. Kesterson and her husband has been filed, and a copy from the Register's office, and the bill is taken for granted. The answer of Mrs. Kesterson admits the making of the deed by her husband, and that a copy thereof is on file in the Register's office, and also admits that she signed the same, and that a future deed was made to take the property conveyed by the deed of her husband, and that the deed is not valid.
